STUDY IN SPAIN

Spain is located on the south-western edge of Europe. Spain's national territory also includes the Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean, the Canary Islands in the Atlantic Ocean off the African coast, and the cities of Ceuta and Melilla in the north of the African continent. The Kingdom of Spain – to give it its official name – has a population of 46,157,822 inhabitants. It is the second largest country in Western Europe and the fifth largest in terms of population. Spain is also the world's eighth largest economy (2007).

Since the ratification of the Constitution in 1978, Spain has been a democratic state with a parliamentary monarchy. The country is divided into 17 regions, known as Autonomous Communities, which have varying degrees of self-government. Madrid is the capital of the country and the seat of government.

Spanish (also known as Castilian) is the official language of the state and Catalan, Galician and Basque are also official languages in the Autonomous Communities in which they are spoken.

SPAIN AND THE EU

On 12 June 1985, Spain signed the Treaty of Accession to the European Communities, which came into force on 1 January 1986. Spain thus became a member state of what is known today as the European Union (EU).

Since its accession, Spain has been a particularly dynamic member of the European community. It is firmly committed to the dual process of expansion and intensification of the European project, and seeks to promote at all times the ideals of cohesion, unity and solidarity in Europe and elsewhere.

Over the years, Spain has established itself as one of the Union's most active member states with regard to the design of new projects.

SPANISH UNIVERSITIES: PAST AND PRESENT

The history of Spanish universities dates back to the beginning of the thirteenth century when the first university institutions were founded in the kingdoms of Castile and Leon, under the auspices of the cathedral schools of Palencia (between 1208 and 1214) and Salamanca (1218). During that century, many of the kingdoms in the Peninsula created their own studia generale: for instance, in Valladolid towards the middle of the thirteenth century, in Lleida between 1279 and 1300, and in Alcalá in 1293. The greatest expansion took place between 1450 and 1625, with the opening of universities in Barcelona (1450), Santiago de Compostela (1495), Valencia (1499), Granada (1531) and Oviedo (1608).

In modern times, the Spanish university boom coincided with the process of decentralization following the ratification of the Constitution in 1978, as many sectors of society began to demand access to higher education for the first time.

During the past 30 years, the Spanish university system has undergone a transformation as profound and intense as that of the country itself. Two-thirds of the country's universities date from this period, and the number of students has tripled since the late 1970s. Today the presence of women students is particularly significant. On some undergraduate programs, women now account for 55% of the student body and their graduation rate currently stands at 61%.

The private universities, which have been fully operational within the Spanish university system for several years, represent just over a third of the total. Twenty private universities have been founded since 1993, which means that 74% of Spanish private universities are less than 15 years old.

Today the Spanish university system is made up of 77 universities, 50 public and 27 private, distributed throughout the country on more than 180 campuses. Currently, there are five distance-learning universities and two special universities which offer specialized postgraduate programs.

Alongside the academic training it provides, the Spanish university system is also actively engaged in research and knowledge transfer. Spanish universities are among the country's most productive centres of research.

DEGREE STRUCTURE

The Spanish university system is fully adapted to the European Higher Education Area (EHEA) and follows the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS).

ECTS credits are the standard adopted by all the universities in the European Higher Education Area (EHEA) and guarantee the convergence of the various European education systems.

ECTS credits are based on the work completed by the student: hours of class, study, written work, and practicals.

An ECTS credit represents 25 hours of study. A student studying full-time is expected to obtain 60 ECTS credits in an academic year.

There are three different degree qualifications in the Spanish university system:

a) Bachelor's degrees, designed to prepare students for professional practice in one or more disciplines.

Undergraduate studies, leading to Bachelor degrees, are taught in the following areas:

- Arts and Humanities
- Sciences
- Health Sciences
- Social Sciences and Law
- Engineering and Architecture

Scholarships available for international students!

Quality European Postgraduate Programs

Masters Programs in Business Administration, E-Business, Economics, Finance, Organization and Markets and Telematics Engineering offered in English

Adapted to EHEA

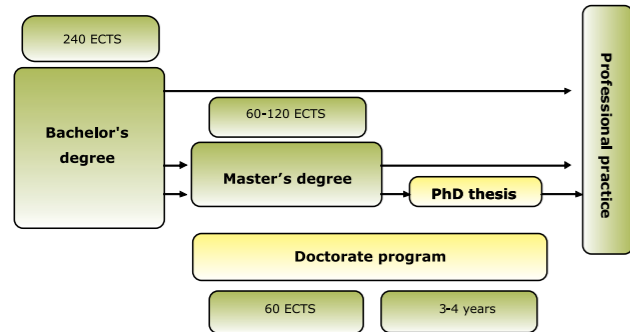

To obtain a Bachelor's degree, students must obtain a total of 240 ECTS, normally over a period four academic years.

b) Master's degrees, geared to academic or professional specialization or to introducing students in the world of research

To obtain a University Master's degree, students must obtain 60 to 120 ECTS, normally over a period of one for two academic years. Students must also produce a dissertation worth between 6 and 30 ECTS.

c) Doctoral degrees, devoted to the practice of university research.

Doctoral programs are divided into two cycles: a study cycle, comprising 60 ECTS, that can be part of a Master program, and a research cycle. Candidates for the doctoral degree must present and defend their PhD thesis, which is an original research study in any field. There is no official time limit for doctoral programs but they normally require three to four years of study and research.

THE ACADEMIC YEAR

The vast majority of Spanish universities divide the academic year into two semesters. The first usually starts in mid-September or early October, and finishes at the end of December; the exam period is usually in January. The second semester usually starts in late January or early February and finishes at the end of May. June is the exam period. This calendar may vary slightly from university to university.

HOW TO APPLY

BACHELOR'S DEGREE STUDIES

OPTION A

Students from India wishing to begin their university studies at a Spanish university must have their studies officially recognized and must take the Spanish university entrance examination known as Selectividad, which is held annually. Foreign students wishing to sit this examination will find information on venues, dates and registration periods at the website of Spain's University of Distance Education (UNED): www.uned.es/selectividad

On passing the university entrance examination, students may apply to study at any Spanish university, either public or private.

Spanish universities require students wishing to embark on university studies to pre-enrol for a place at their faculties or schools. It is advisable to do this in good time.

OPTION B

Students who have begun or finished university studies in India must apply to the Spanish university where they wish to study for partial recognition of the studies they have already completed abroad. This official recognition (known in Spanish as convalidación) will be made in accordance with the criteria stipulated by the Spanish Council of University Coordination.

MASTER'S AND DOCTORAL DEGREES

Students interested in pursuing master's or doctoral degree studies in Spain may apply for admission at the Spanish university where they wish to study.

To be accepted for master's degree studies in Spain, candidates must be in possession of a Bachelor's degree. The Spanish university must be satisfied that the level of the studies leading to this degree is equivalent to that required to obtain a Bachelor's degree in Spain. In the case of Doctoral degrees, candidate must also have obtained at least 60 ECTS credits on a Master's program.

THE SPANISH UNIVERSITY SYSTEM

FEES

Enrolment fees for bachelor's degrees at public universities vary between 500 and 1,000 € per academic year, depending on the course and the student's academic performance (students repeating subjects must pay an extra charge when they enrol for the second time). The average cost of fees at a private university varies between 5,000 and 10,000 € per academic year, depending on the institution and the studies.

The cost of master's and doctoral degrees taught at both public and private universities is officially established by the education authorities. The cost per credit on a Master or Doctoral degree program is between 16 € and 28 €; therefore, the cost of a Master's degree will range between 1,680 and 3,360 €.

SCHOLARSHIPS

With the internationalization of universities and their programs, an increasing number of grants and scholarships are now available to students wishing to pursue higher education studies abroad.

In Spain, several public and private institutions offer financial aid to foreign students wishing to study here. Before applying for a specific grant, candidates should find out as much as they can about the various possibilities open to them.

STUDY VISAS

Indian citizens who wish to spend time studying, receiving professional training or researching in Spain must apply for a visa if their stay in Spain is to be longer than three months.

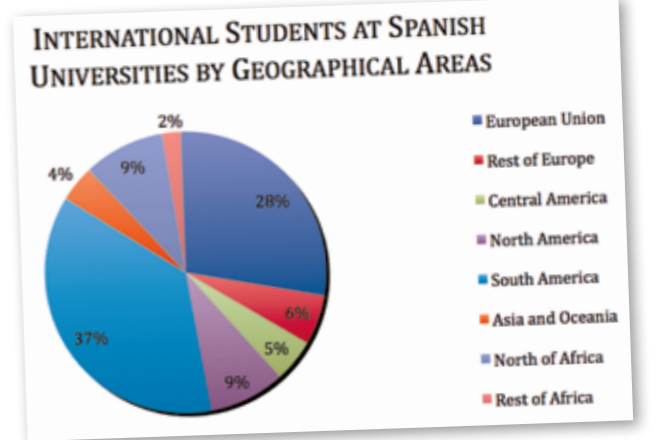

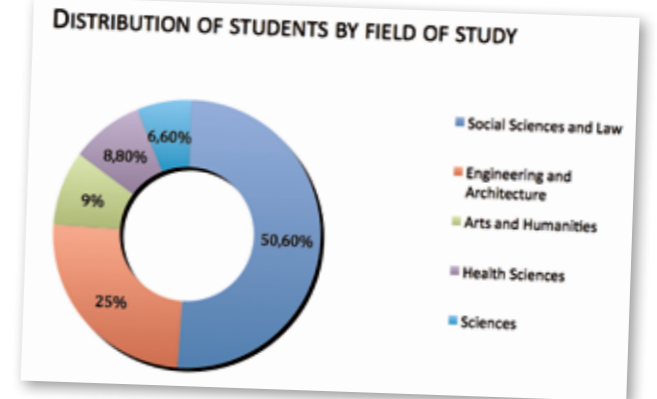

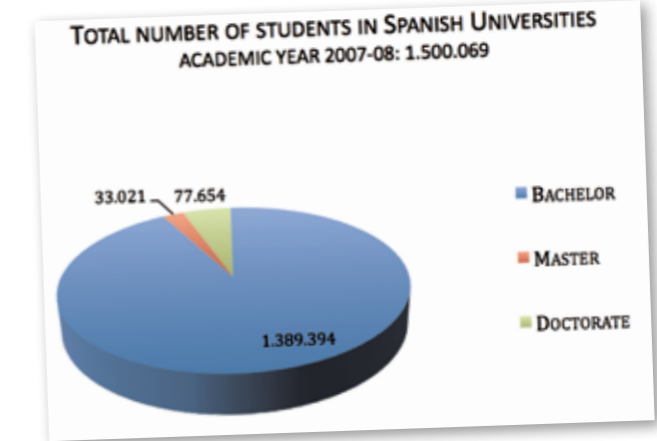

Applications for study visas should be made at the Spanish Consulates, where information regarding requirements and the documentation needed for the application process can be obtained. A prior condition is that registration (in written form) from the Spanish educational or scientific institution must be provided with details of the courses or research or training work involved, including the contents of the study, training, or research curriculum. The study visa shall be issued for the duration of the course or research work for which the student is registered.

The document legally authorizes students to work part-time during their studies, if and when this is compatible with the studies or research work for which the visa is issued.

UNIVERSIDAD.ES FOUNDATION

Universidad.es is a public sector foundation whose creation was approved by Spain's Council of Ministers in October 2008. It is a resource that aims to be competitive at international level and to promote the Spanish university system throughout the world. Universidad.es was set up by the Spanish government with the support of Spain's regional governments and of the universities themselves. Its aim is to create an international brand for the Spanish university system, maximizing its international visibility and providing effective reputation management.

The new agency is one of the key actions outlined in the government's "University Strategy 2015", a recently launched strategic action-oriented policy which aims to help the country's leading institutions to compete alongside the best in Europe. The policy focuses on the internationalization of the Spanish universities, but at the same time highlights the need to modernize the Spanish system.

MAIN LINES OF ACTION

The internationalization of the Spanish university system and the enhancement of the global profile of its higher education institutions are the cornerstones of Foundation's activities. Since its launch in February 2009, Universidad.es has pursued five main lines of action:

- Establishing Spain as a leading destination for foreign students and researchers
- Increasing the presence of Spanish students and researchers throughout the world
- Encouraging transnational education under the leadership of Spanish universities
- Helping universities to develop their internationalization strategies
- Promoting university development cooperation projects

OUR TOOLS

- Website

www.universidad.es is a forum for the exchange of views and experiences. The website provides international students and researchers with the information they need in order to study or carry out research at a Spanish university. It guides students throughout the process, from the time they apply for admission from their countries of origin to their arrival in Spain, and also during their stay.

- Participation at international higher education fairs

Through its presence at international higher education fairs and conventions and its organization of promotional activities, the Foundation monitors the needs, concerns and expectations of the university communities throughout the world.

• Presence abroad

Support for the Foundation's activities is provided by Spain's international network, made up by the Spanish embassies and consulates, the offices of the AECID, the Cervantes Institute, and the Ministry of Education. This presence abroad offers international students and researchers an invaluable point of entry to the Spanish university system.

GOVERNING BODIES

The Board of Trustees is the Foundation's governing and representative body. It comprises the following institutions:

President
Minister of education
Vice-president
Secretary of state for cooperation
Ministry of foreign affairs and cooperation
Ministry of science and innovation
Spanish agency for international development cooperation (aecid)
Institute for foreign trade (icex)
Ministry of culture
Ministry of justice
Ministry of health and social policy
Cervantes institute
